ARTICLE TYPES: The journal will contain a wide variety of articles. I. Peer-Reviewed Articles: Peer Reviewed Articles include research papers, experience reports, case studies, theme issues, and survey papers. Scholarly writing always use of correct citations and builds on the body of academic professional work with quality inputs. These articles always report original research results, describe technical innovations or review the literature on a specific topic in a lengthy detail. Such work should reflect fresh research in the field or in ideas and be previously unpublished in any other journals. Only original work is accepted by us and articles should not be under approval by other publishers, at the time of submission to us. To be accepted for publication, these articles will be scrutinized and evaluated by at least two members of the Editorial Review Board of the journal. See the Submitting a Peer-reviewed Article page for more information. II. Non-Peer-Reviewed Articles: Non-Peer Reviewed Articles may include position papers, columns, and rebuttals. IJOP will also feature casual style columns or department from time to time. Consult the Columns page of the Guide for Authors for a detailed description of column topics and a more comprehensive list of requirements and needs. A non peer-reviewed article may be submitted electronically to the journal's editor at mfayad@vrlsoft.com.
